Re: OPPAGA Report 09-28 – Production of Teachers Who Remain in the Classroom Varies by Preparation Program

A six-month follow-up of corrective action was considered for this report in December, 2009; however, because management had certain disagreement with report recommendations, the Department's response to the original report included no corrective actions. Therefore, a six-month follow-up was not considered necessary since management had determined not to take any actions in response to report recommendations.
